

Alina and her best friend Meghan decided to go to a movie audition, Meghan tells her it will be fun and that even though they won't get the lead role, it will be a fun experience for both of them

You choose to go to the audition with Meghan

You choose to go to the movies by yourself

They arrive at the studio where they are holding auditions for the new movie "...". Meghan is an acting major at their college and Alina is sure she'll get some kind of role. Alina is majoring in Finance the only acting experience she has is watching her mother act when she was a kid

As you arrive at the movies you see limos and paparazzi everywhere. You look around puzzled trying to figure out what is going on. By talking to a few paps you discover that the famous movie star Trent Turner has rented out two theaters to throw his little sister a birthday party in which he will premiere his new movie to her and her friends. You knew living in LA could have its surprises but you never expected

Alina chickens out and refuses to audition

Alina auditions and aces it!

You decided to slip into the back of the theater

you choose to go into your own theater

She walks out of the theater in a rush. As she turns around to make sure no one is following her she feels herself bump into someone and the coffee she's carrying spill all over her shirt. She looks up and sees Trent Turner in front of her. He tells her he's so sorry and offers to drive her home.

The people auditioning decided to cast her as the lead role. Alina is shocked and asks them why they would cast a walk on. They tell her that they wanted some fresh talent and that's why they held the audition in the first place. Alina tries to decide whether or not she wants to tell Meghan right away. She's scared that Meghan might get mad that Alina did better than she did even though she's the acting

As Alina slips in she finds an empty seat in the back and prays no one notices her. She tries to calm herself down as none other than Trent Turner himself sits down next to her. He says "huh I don't remember inviting you?"

Alina walks to her theater but isn't looking where she's going and bumps into someone hard. Alina's popcorn spills all over the floor and she looks up, she's ready to yell at whoever walked straight into her but her eyes see Trent Turner standing in front of her. "Oh uh hi" she says "Hi I'm so sorry! I'll buy you a new bag! come with me!" he says to her "Oh no no um that's fine I can get one myself" she mumbles. "Don't worry about it I got it" he insists.

She agrees

she says no

She decides to tell

she decides to not tell

she says nothing

she lies and says she's an old friend of his sister

She says she'll pay for it herself

He drives Alina to her apartment. He asks her if she's heard of that audition that they were holding nearby where he bumped into her. She told him she had but she never really auditioned. He tells her that he's co-starring in the movie and though she would be perfect for the other lead role. He tells her it would be no problem for him to get her a new audition and promises he'll even be there to watch. She agrees.

She does accept to go to coffee with him the next morning. That next morning at coffee he asks her if she's heard of that audition that they were holding nearby where he bumped into her. She told him she had but she never really auditioned. He tells her that he's co-starring in the movie and though she would be perfect for the other lead role. He tells her it would be no problem for him to get her a new audition and promises he'll even be there to watch. She agrees.

Meghan is very happy for her friend and is happy to support her Meghan finds out when the casting list is released. Despite Alina's worry, Meghan is very happy for her friend and is happy to support her.

She is speechless but he laughs it off and they get to talking and he asks her if she's heard of that audition that they were holding nearby where he bumped into her. She told him she had but she never really auditioned. He tells her that he's co-starring in the movie and though she would be perfect for the other lead role. He tells her it would be no problem for him to get her a new audition and promises he'll even be there to watch. She agrees.

He tells her his sister is 7 and doubts there's any way she knows her. She is speechless but he laughs it off and they get to talking and he asks her if she's heard of that audition that they were holding nearby where he bumped into her. She told him she had but she never really auditioned. He tells her that he's co-starring in the movie and though she would be perfect for the other lead role. He tells her it would be no problem for him to get her a new audition and promises he'll even be there to watch. She agrees.

As they are walking over to the concession stand, he asks her if she's heard of that audition that they were holding nearby where he bumped into her. She told him she had but she never really auditioned. He tells her that he's co-starring in the movie and though she would be perfect for the other lead role. He tells her it would be no problem for him to get her a new audition and promises he'll even be there to watch. She agrees.

He walks with her anyway. He asks her if she's heard of that audition that they were holding nearby where he bumped into her. She told him she had but she never really auditioned. He tells her that he's co-starring in the movie and though she would be perfect for the other lead role. He tells her it would be no problem for him to get her a new audition and promises he'll even be there to watch. She agrees.